Comments:

Lesson plans are evident. Objective is clearly posted on the board for each grade level, today and every day.

Teacher has individual students record for pre and post assessment and to assess individually and formally. Frequent "checks for understanding" occur continually as the group is playing or by having individuals of sections play by themselves.

Bill uses technology to record, to listen to project, to communicate, to inform and to evaluate and assess. Springportbands webage, Facebook, Twitter, Blog, texts, emails etc.

Concert day, got to be about sound and focus. Builds them up to ensure a highly effective rehearsal leading up to the big event.

Don't answer this outloud, do we have a triangle of sound. That was musicianship, the other was technique. Differentiating between upper level concepts.

Sit up straight backs off the chair.

What is the difference between a forte breath and a piano breath? Asked three times. Nothing.

Instruction clearly matched the daily objective the entire hour referring back to focus continually.

This piece is long and requires mental focus, not to be distracted. Watch my eyes. Need to watch me to remain focused.

Watch me, How would you not want to watch this? Ha-ha. I got the red ones on today. Joking about his shoes and showing evidence of excellent rapport.

Oooh, nice release! Eyes light up with genuine happiness with their performance.

If you look like you played it right no one will know the difference. Don't just sound good, look good. Parents sometimes tell little fibs to make you feel good. These are all comments that demonstrate mutual respect and Bruce, a disapproving look and "come on dude" to modify his behavior.

"Kaden, that would not be focus"

Frequent non verbal directions (mouthpiece only, put your mouthpiece back in) in addition to directing.

Evidence of extremely high expectations. "Kind of, but if I wanted kind of I'd go to another school", "Your eyes are on me, if they aren't all on me, you're not good enough."

"You guys are having a good day already, it is a good day when percussion is rockin" Gave them a positive comment.

Thumbs up as they are playing when he hears something especially good.

"Yeah, wooo, smoked that first note. "

It is rude to turn a page when people are applauding you, you do it after I bow and turn back around. Where is your instrument. Crafting the acceptable routines for highly disciplined groups.

Predicting and anticipating potential errors." I have two fears with Anasati, this is how you get rid of my fears...."

Kids laughing, this is FUN!

Student Growth

Student Growth is defined as the performance of a student as an individual and/or group as improving developmentally appropriate academic achievement based upon established MDE standards.

Rationale: This rubric focuses on measuring student growth that accomplished three components:

1. Collaborative and theory and practice between the educator and administrator
2. Support district and building level improvement goals.
3. Support the professional development of the educator.

Comments:

Data Use: Bill had students complete self assessments and set goals based on their first semester work. He gave these back to them at the end of they year and had them evaluate how they

McCall – best thing is about how band is like a family.

Sussex – say she likes that she had her classmates succeed together identifies the teamwork component.

Shonda Burkwalt won the 8th grade march off today and was totally focused at the end of they year after being nearly kicked out of band earlier in the year.

School Improvement:

Reading MME Scores decreased slightly from 60.4% proficient in 2011 to 59.04% in 2012. While Bill does not specifically teach a reading class, all must integrate reading into all our classrooms to promote lifelong learning and for all teachers to work toward increased achievement in our MME scores.

Building and District school improvement goals cannot be met otherwise.

In Bill's Individual Development Plan he completed his documented curriculum for both middle school and high school courses. He has worked this year to fine tune assessments and his podcasting and blogging has been integrated into Rock History effectively.

Student Growth: ½ from teacher ½ from administrator

Anticipated growth for a 12-18 month period is 1-2 points on Explore, Plan or ACT.

Using the EPAS system, reading growth from the end of 7th grade through the end of 11th grade shows AVERAGE annual growth of 1.43 points. All 7.5 points earned for this half of growth data.

Classroom data:

All but one student in middle school and high school band demonstrated growth based on recorded pre and post assessments which were also scored on a rubric, comments and suggestions for improvements. Bill receives 7.5 points for classroom based assessments.

Total Points = 96.5

By a mutually agreed upon date, the evaluator and teacher will meet to put in writing the selected assessment that will be used as data sources in this evaluation. If other assessments will be used, a written rationale will be provided as to why it was chosen. The administrator and teacher input in the collection of growth data will be of equal value in the assessment process.

Professional development of the educator is essential in the growth process. If an educator or their administrator feels specific professional development would be important to improving student growth that can be discussed during this process.
